

July 15, 2020

The Study that Caught Dr. Bonnie Henry's Attention

Provincial Health Officer, Dr. Bonnie Henry, recently cited a reassuring study out of the Netherlands that explains that the virus is mainly spread between adults, with the spread of COVID-19 among children or from children to adults being less common.

"For young children in particular, they don't seem to be as affected by it. They don't seem to have as severe illnesses, and they don't seem to pass it on to adults as effectively," said Dr. Henry.

To read the full report by the Dutch National Institute for Public Health and the Environment please see here.